ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Alan Ellis, past president of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, is a nationally recognized authority in sentencing, prison matters, and post-conviction remedies with offices in San Francisco, New York and Shanghai. He is a co-author with J. Michael Henderson and Todd Bussert of the Federal Prison Guidebook; James H. Feldman, Jr. and Mark Allenbaugh of the Federal Sentencing Guidebook; Mark Allenbaugh, Jonathan Edelstein, James H. Feldman, Jr., and Karen Landau of the Federal Post Conviction Guidebook; and a contributing editor to the American Bar Association Criminal Justice magazine for whom he writes a quarterly column on federal sentencing. Mr. Ellis has been described as “one of this country’s pre-eminent criminal defense lawyers” by Federal Lawyer magazine. The United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, in a published decision, has identified him as a “nationally recognized expert in federal criminal sentencing.” He is a sought-after lecturer in criminal law education programs and is widely published in the areas of federal sentencing, Bureau of Prisons matters, appeals and other post-conviction remedies, with more than 120 articles and books and 70 lectures, presentations and speaking engagements to his credit. He was a Visiting Professor of Law, by way of a Fulbright grant awarded by the U.S. State Department, to conduct lectures at Shanghai Jiaotong University’s School of Law on the criminal protections afforded defendants in America.

J. Michael Henderson is a federal prison consultant to the Law Offices of Alan Ellis. Mr. Henderson has over 23 years of experience working with the Bureau of Prisons. While employed by the BOP, Mr. Henderson served as the Regional Designator for the Western Region of the United States. He served in this capacity in the early 90s and again from 1997 until his retirement in 2000. In that capacity, his duties included oversight of the Federal Bureau of Prisons classification of newly sentenced federal offenders in the western part of the United States. Mr. Henderson also worked at several prisons ranging from administrative to high security, and also provided staff training in these areas. During his career, Mr. Henderson has received numerous awards and recognition for his work including noteworthy awards from the inmate branch of the NAACP at FPC Allenwood and the Bureau of Prisons’ National Stanford Bates Award for outstanding contributions to improved case management. He is the co-author of articles in this book such as: “Securing a Favorable Prison Designation,” “Early Release from Custody,” “Getting Out Early, The Bureau of Prisons’ RDAP Program,” and “Reducing Recidivism: The Bureau of Prisons Comprehensive Residential Drug Abuse Program.”
Todd Bussert, a member of FROST | BUSSERT LLC in New Haven, Connecticut, has worked in the federal sentencing and post-conviction arenas for more than 15 years, including previously as the Associate Director of Client Services for the National Center on Institutions and Alternatives (NCIA). In addition to trial-level defense of federal criminal matters, Todd’s scope of representation includes direct criminal appeals, motions brought pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §2255 and 28 U.S.C. §2241, and issues involving the federal Bureau of Prisons (BOP), such as placement, programming and administrative remedy appeals. Todd is Of Counsel to the Law Offices of Alan Ellis, and regularly consults with other attorneys and their clients concerning federal sentencing and prison matters. He also writes and speaks on federal sentencing and prison issues. With Alan Ellis, he wrote “Looking at the BOP’s Amended RDAP Rules” and “Stemming the Tide of Post-conviction Waivers,” and he is the principal author of The Federal Bureau of Prisons chapter in the DEFENDING A FEDERAL CRIMINAL CASE treatise. Todd is a member and the former vice-chair of the Practitioners’ Advisory Group to the U.S. Sentencing Commission and past co-chair of both the American Bar Association Criminal Justice Section’s Corrections and Sentencing Committee and the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers’ Corrections Committee. He is a member of Families Against Mandatory Minimums’ Litigation Advisory Board and was a Visiting Lecturer in Law at the Yale Law School.

SPECIAL THANKS
