ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Cindy Stormer has been a practicing Texas attorney for over twenty years. She is currently an Assistant District Attorney in Dallas. She has been the elected District Attorney in Cooke County, an Assistant District Attorney in Fort Worth, and an Assistant City Attorney for Dallas, and she had a successful small firm practice for fourteen years. Stormer's law firm was a general practice law firm handling civil and criminal trials, family law, personal injury, real estate, negligence, estate planning, and probate law.

In addition to a varied trial career with extensive jury trial experience, she has written approximately three hundred appellate briefs. Stormer is licensed to practice law in Texas; the U.S. District Court, Northern District of Texas, and the Eastern District; and in the United States Supreme Court.

She has been a part-time Adjunct Instructor at North Central Texas College and Tarrant County College where she has taught Texas Trial Practices; Civil Litigation; Family Law; Probate, Trusts and Estates; Torts; Legal Research; Legal Writing; Criminal Procedure and Evidence; Government; English as a Second Language, and other courses. She has also taught at the Basic Prosecutor's Course sponsored by the Texas District and County Attorneys Association, and at the Advanced Criminal Law Course for the State Bar of Texas, and various police academies. She is on the planning committee for professional development for the State Bar of Texas. She was in charge of the legal curriculum for the Dallas Police Academy when she was the Chief Attorney for the Dallas Police Department. She was a police officer and in police work for ten years before becoming an attorney.

She has been named Outstanding Attorney of the Year by Court Appointed Special Advocates of Texas and Distinguished Alumni by Tarrant County College. She is a Life Fellow of the Texas Bar Foundation.
