Acknowledgments

This book would not have been possible had it not been for a phone call I received from a gentleman by the name of Neil Stadtmore, a Managing Editor for James Publishing Company. Neil had seen some materials from one of the many seminars I've spoken at, and he asked whether I would like to write a book. I had always wanted to write a book to help attorneys by giving them insights on how insurance company claim departments think and do business. Thanks for "discovering" me, Neil. I also want to thank all the editors and staff at James Publishing Company for their work in this process. It has been quite a wonderful experience.

I want to thank my friends and colleagues for their help and assistance with this book. I have mentioned them in various sections the book, but I would like to also identify them all in one place:

Robert Galt, vocational rehabilitationist.

Salvatore Raimondi, forensic mechanic and collision specialist.

John Romano, Esq., who has invited me to speak at his many seminars.

Richard Slawson, Esq., and his partner Fred Cunningham, Esq.

David Pettinato, Esq.

Carl Berkovitz, Esq.

K.P. Jones, Esq.

Paul Sullivan, Esq.

Philip Sanov, Esq., of Houston, Texas, and his research assistant, Jessica Levy, Esq.

Howard Grossman, Esq.

John Nenezian, Managing General Agent.

Joe LaForte, Public Adjuster.

Ed Ricci, Esq., with whom I worked for almost 30 years.

Finally, thank you to all the friends and colleagues that I have had the privilege of working with over the years, and to anyone whose name I missed.

Much of the material contained in this book is not taught to attorneys in law school. What is contained in these pages is a culmination of over forty years of experience of having worked in the claims department for one of the largest insurance companies in the world, and thereafter on behalf of the victims of accidents and for policyholders who have had disputes with their insurance carriers.

About the Author

Joseph L. Vaccaro has over 40 years of insurance claim handling experience. He served 11 years in the claims department of one of the nation's largest insurance companies, handling and supervising adjusters in casualty claims in all lines of both personal and commercial insurance. During the following 28 years he worked for two prominent plaintiff law firms as head of their pre-litigation departments before starting his own consulting firm in September of 2008.

Mr. Vaccaro still maintains a current adjuster's license, and carries the following professional designations recognized in the insurance industry:

- Casualty Claim Law Associate (CCLA).
- Commercial Lines Coverage Specialist (CLCS).
- Personal Lines Coverage Specialist (PLCS).

Joe is a prolific writer on insurance-related topics and is frequently invited to speak at continuing education and other seminars for attorneys and paralegals. He now consults in matters involving insurance policy disputes, insurance bad faith, mediation/negotiation strategies, and provides expert services on behalf of policyholders.
